

CLASS ACTION SUMMARY STATEMENT

1. What is a class action?

Where seven or more people have claims that arise out of similar circumstances (such as in this case), a class action can be brought by one lead plaintiff on their own behalf and as a representative of others. The class action will resolve the common issues of fact or law for the class through the vehicle of the lead plaintiff's case. The class action process is an efficient way for the court to determine the common issues that apply to claims involving large numbers of people.

2. Who is the Uber Class Action against, and what is the claim for?

The claim is against Uber Technologies Incorporated and various other Uber entities (together, the Uber Entities). The claim alleges that the Uber Entities engaged in the tort of "conspiracy by unlawful means", causing loss in the value of licences and loss of income.

3. Who is a group member in the Uber Class Action?

You are a group member if you were a licence owner, network service provider, operator or driver in the taxi or hire-car/limousine/charter vehicle industries in:

- Victoria between 1 April 2014 and 23 August 2017;
- New South Wales between 7 April 2014 and 18 December 2015
- Queensland between 17 April 2014 and 9 June 2017; and
- Western Australia between 10 October 2014 and 4 July 2016.

A complete definition of group members is available at Part A of the Statement of Claim.

4. What is the role and responsibility of the lead plaintiff?

The role of the lead plaintiff is to be the representative for the class. They will provide instructions to Maurice Blackburn regarding the conduct of the case and may give evidence during the proceeding. In hearing the lead plaintiff's case, the Court will be asked to make findings in relation to questions of fact and/or law that are common to all group members. In this case the lead plaintiff is Mr Nick Andrianakis, who is a taxi licence owner, operator and driver.

5. Who is the law firm acting for the lead plaintiff?

Maurice Blackburn.

6. How is the Uber Class Action funded?

Unless there is a successful outcome to the Uber Class Action (such as a settlement that is approved by the Court or a judgement by the Court awarding damages to group members), all costs associated with the class action will be borne by either Maurice Blackburn or Harbour Fund III, L.P. (Harbour). Harbour is the litigation funder funding the case. In the event of a successful outcome, any amounts due to both Maurice Blackburn and Harbour must be first approved by the Court before they can be deducted from the money to be paid to group members. Those deductions will never exceed a group member's recovery.

In the event that there is not a successful outcome to the Uber Class Action, group members cannot be pursued for costs by Uber - the Supreme Court Act prohibits orders for costs against group members.

7. How are legal fees and disbursements charged?

Maurice Blackburn's legal costs are calculated using time based billing and disbursements (for example, fees for experts and barristers) are charged at cost. Harbour pays a proportion of the legal costs and all disbursements whilst the case is underway. The remaining legal costs are 'conditional' and are only recoverable by Maurice Blackburn in the event of a successful outcome. Maurice Blackburn will, at no stage, pursue group members for the payment of legal costs and disbursements.

It may be that the Court makes orders which have the effect of ensuring that all group members are treated equally in terms of the amount deducted from their recovery for legal funding costs, regardless of whether they had a Retainer with Maurice Blackburn and a Funding Agreement with Harbour.

8. Are there currently any other class actions against Uber?

As at May 2019, the Uber Class Action is the only class action in Australia that has been commenced on behalf of participants in the taxi and hire-car/limousine/charter vehicle industries against Uber.
